Germany Now Realizes That French and British Are In Earnest

By International News Service

Germany today launched her greatest diplomatic offensive in this war which seems to be slow in getting under way in the Rhineland, but which has cost the lives and liberty of many thousands of Poles as vast German fingers clutched deeper into Poland.

At last beginning to recognize that the French and British are in earnest in their determination to make no peace with a country governed by Adolf Hitler, the Reich abruptly swung towards alliance with Soviet Russia in a deal for a fourth and "final" partition of Poland.

France's careful campaign to straighten out her lines in the No-Man's land between the Maginot Line and the German Westwall continued successfully, and some reports said the British expeditionary force was active for the first time.

With cascades of shells showering death on either side, French quarters said their grip was closing on Saarbrücken as the Germans fell back.

Germany's forked lightning darted on Warsaw, Lwow, and towards Brest-Litovsk; but of major importance was the understanding in Berlin that Germany has approved Soviet claims on Poland as they stood when the treaty of Brest-Litovsk was signed in 1918 and Russia's running out of shells packed with sawdust, backed out of the World War.

German diplomacy throws back more than a century, to the Congress of Vienna, when the boundaries of the Duchy of Poland, as a part of Russia, were established.

These lines were left in the short-lived treaty which the new Bolshevik

Exchange Club Meets
At Residence of Dr. Fox

Exchange Club members and their wives and friends met at the home of Dr. George T. Fox last evening, where a delightful social evening was passed. In the early evening the group gathered on the lawn which was gaily lighted and decorated with flags and bunting.

Later they played a number of unusual games in the house, including: Burlesque on life savers; magic ring; mental telepathy; roll out the barrel; throwing the rolling pin at the lazy husband; barnyard and the zoo; and Burlesque on electrification. Then the "Pony Express Riders," who visited Bristol yesterday, came to Dr. Fox's residence where the club members and the women were entertained by Kazan, famous police dog of movie fame. The "Express Riders," Mr. and Mrs. King, told of their experiences across the continent, and members purchased Pony Express envelopes from Mr. and Mrs. King.

Kazan put on a little show for the group. One of the club members was tied to a chair and the dog's master said that the bound man was a long-lost friend. Kazan immediately jumped forward and untied the man. Kazan was then told he had been deceived, that the man he had just rescued was really an enemy. The dog then immediately jumped toward the club member. He was leashed, however, and acting at his master's command.

Fire Damages A Garage;
Formerly Fire Headquarters

Fire damaged the garage of William Harding, Garden street, located in the alley at the rear of Beaver Fire Company building, yesterday afternoon. The frame structure was used years ago as the first headquarters for the Beaver Company, No. 4.

It is believed that the building was set afire by children, the blaze apparently starting on the outside near the ground. The car was not in the garage at the time, but a quantity of material stored in the structure was damaged.

Bristol Consolidated Fire Company responded to the alarm, fighting the blaze with chemicals.

FATHERS HEAR ADDRESS
ON SUBJECT OF "WOOL"William H. Arensmeyer Tells of Grades, Variations, and Marketing of Wool

DONATE $200 TO "XI"

An address on "Wool," delivered by William H. Arensmeyer, before members of the Fathers' Association in Bristol high school auditorium, last evening, was one of the high-lights of the session, the members being greatly interested in the informative talk.

The business meeting was presided over by David Neill, during which session William Thompson was elected to the office of financial secretary.

A lengthy discussion on condition of the athletic field took place, it being the consensus of opinion that it is badly in need of top soil. The coach, Thomas Campion, told that the pebbles and stones which now cover the field wear out equipment quickly, and also add to injuries. The members realizing that many carloads of top soil would be required to place six inches on the football field alone, had a committee named to consider the proposition, and secure aid, the members being Mr. Campion, Charles Utz and Arthur Seyfert.

Coach Campion presented the matter of needed equipment for the football team, and the Fathers' Association donated $200 toward the same. The coach stated that 22 shoulder pads and 11 helmets will be purchased, together with other equipment.

Speaking upon the subject of "Wool," Mr. Arensmeyer, who has wide experience in manufacture of

The Poor Creatures

(By "The Stroller")
"Can you please tell me where I'll find the pimentoes?" queried a young married man as he wandered down the aisle of one of Bristol's self service stores a few days ago.

And as he hesitated between the vegetable counter and the bottled goods section, wondering which way to turn to in his search, he attempted to aid an older man who was looking for baking powder.

But the strange part was, as is so often the case, the older man pushed the "baby-carriage" without giving it a second thought, while the younger one, evidently unaccustomed to walking behind a four-wheeled vehicle, carried a wire basket under his arm.

TRIAL OF "MERCY SLAYER"
IS TO BE THIS MONTH

No Official Steps Seen to Have Sanity Commission Appointed for Aged Woman

SHOT HER ILL SISTER

The case of Margaret L. Cowan, 77, listed for murder in the "mercy slaying" of her sister, Mrs. Louella A. Saeger, 67, will come before the September court jurors.

The murder took place in Allentown State Hospital on the 15th of August.

Preparations for the trial are well under way.

Intimations have been free since Mrs. Saeger was shot to death that her sister would never stand trial for her murder. Instead, it was surmised that a sanity commission would be named and the aged woman would be deemed "not responsible" for her act.

Miss Cowan is alleged to have shot her sister at the hospital, after giving her food containing a narcotic with the avowed intention of freeing her sister "from her misery."

But at the office of the District Attorney it was said that plans are proceeding for the trial of Miss Cowan, as there have been no official steps taken to have a sanity commission appointed to examine the accused woman.

According to the procedure, it was said, the warden of the jail would petition the court to have Miss Cowan examined by a sanity commission and thus far no petition of this nature has been forthcoming.

The warden, according to the District Attorney's office, was asked to determine through the prison physician if a sanity commission was needed.

The physician said, according to the report received, that a psychiatrist might be needed and the warden has expressed his opinion that Miss Cowan appears rational during his conversations with her, the District Attorney's office declares.

For that reason, unless something changes the present appearance of the case, Miss Cowan will be called for trial and preparations are being made for it.

Miss Cowan was represented at a preliminary hearing and at the coroner's inquest by Attorney Daniel M. Garrahan, who said he had not been informed of any possible sanity test and was preparing to defend Miss Cowan in court.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Two Views

THE reason is because both sides are in accord on the two basic things—first, in being anxious to keep out of the war; second, in being anti-Hitler in feeling. Thus, the debate over neutrality revision would appear to be about details, and there should be no occasion for bitterness. Particularly, there will be no occasion for bitterness if each side will ascribe the same sincerity to the other which it claims for itself. And this ought to be easy because there is not the slightest cause for suspecting either of sinister motives or unpatriotic purpose.

WHILE his position as President prevents him from stating the facts in unequivocal language, still the Roosevelt acts and words make his feeling perfectly plain. He wants to keep this country out of war but is definitely committed to a policy of aiding Britain and France in every way he can "short of war." The argument is that helping France and Britain is merely enlightened selfishness, that their success is national insurance against our involvement; that fundamentally their cause is ours; that their defeat would make our position in the world both painful and precarious.

HENCE, the President wants to lift the embargo against shipping arms and munitions to belligerent nations, with full knowledge

Remove Bodies From Squalus

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 15—The bodies of the 26 victims of the submarine Squalus disaster were removed today from the aft compartment of the salvaged submersible.

The Medical Corps, in charge of removing the bodies, screened its activities by erecting a high board fence on the deck of the submarine. The bodies were brought out behind the screen and then brought up to the deck wrapped in sheets, and taken up an improvised gangplank to the dock. From this point they were taken to the morgue for identification.

The committee which has been studying it for four months, resumed its investigation in an effort to determine why the Squalus plunged to the bottom.

Announce French Retreat

(By Pierre J. Huss)

Berlin, Sept. 15—The French offensive against outposts of the Siegfried line on the western frontier were described as a "debacle" in German military circles this afternoon, as a French retreat a few miles west of the River Rhine, German heavy artillery had pushed one French column off the soil entirely, the statement said.

Unofficial German military headquarters insisted that the French offensive was a fiasco. The artillery action of the Siegfried line on the other hand, it was asserted, "has come up to all expectations." Private information asserted that eight out of every 24 tanks had been destroyed.

It was understood that the German high command has ordered its troops on the western front to "stand fast" behind the western wall, allowing the French to occupy the unimportant No Man's Land between the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

SEVERAL DRUNKEN

Ex-Reformatory Inmate Placed On Probation For A
Three-Year Period

ONE DRIVER UNLICENSED

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 15—A Philadelphia motorist, Robert Spence, 51, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving before Judge Calvin S. Boyer in court here, was given a suspended sentence on condition that he pay the sum of $200 and the costs of prosecution.

Spence, who was arrested by Private H. J. Kichline, of the South Langhorne sub-station of the Penna. Motor Police, August 28 in Bristol township, lives at 7029 Gillespie street, Phila.

Spence was told by Judge Boyer "this is one of the most painful duties the Court has to perform. Every session men like you, who have never been in trouble, come before us and have to be punished for driving after indulging in alcoholic beverages," said Judge Boyer, who denounced any club which will permit its members to drink when it knows that they have an automobile outside and expect to operate it.

"Think of it, more than half of your life was spent in being a good, law-abiding citizen, apparently, and now at the age of 51 years you had to break that reputation," continued Judge Boyer. "Never again can you go into any court and say you have never been in any previous trouble."

Lawrence Brown, 22, 2138 North Second street, Phila., charged with felonious entry and larceny, was granted a parole by Judge Boyer and placed on probation for three years. He was recently released from Huntington Reformatory, where Bucks County Court authorities had lodged a detainer against him.

He was granted a parole when he assured the Court and Probation Officer Horace E. Gwiner, who investigated the matter, that he had procured employment as a laundry worker.

Alfred W. Fretz, 19, of New Britain, charged with operating a motor vehicle after his operating privilege had been revoked, was given a suspended sentence on condition that he pay the costs of prosecution, which amounted to more than $25, within two months. He was placed on probation one year.

"When the Commonwealth says you are not to operate your car after your license has been revoked that's what it means," warned Judge Boyer. Fretz's license was revoked following his appearance in court here on a criminal charge involving the theft of gasoline and other things. He was arrested July 4 by Private Joseph J. Jacobs, of the

HAS A FAMILIAR RING

The names are different but the situation is much the same. New generals, new diplomats, new war correspondents, new millions in the ranks, a new generation which once again repeats folly, and once again proves that there is one lesson man refuses to learn, the stupidity of war, its utter meaninglessness.

In place of Richard Harding Davis, who told the story of the march of the Germans through Brussels in 1914, we have Louis Lochner and Robert Bunnelle and Alvin Steinkopf and Donald Day and Lyn Heinzerling and a hundred others to report the best they can on the 1939 rehash of the events of a quarter of a century before. There is a strangely nightmarish quality in the daily news, the feeling that we have heard and seen all these things before.

Twenty-five years ago today the Germans and the French tussled on the Western front, the tide of battle ebbed and flowed between the Vistula and the Bug, just as today. Why and for what? And to what end? Who knows?

Here, for instance, is a paragraph from the speech of the head of the French chamber of deputies in 1914: "Frenchmen, who for 44 years have made every sacrifice for the cause of peace, today are ready for every sacrifice for the holiest of causes—safeguarding the civilization and liberty of France and Europe." That utterance is echoed in the sentiments expressed today. So, too, are the German protestations of encirclement, the charges and countercharges of brutality, the stories of the mistreatment of women and children and the protestations of innocence by all parties accused; and the same old talk by the statesmen of the "sacred union" of allied nations and the infamy of the enemy.

The world cries for sane leadership.

COLORFUL COLONEL RETIRES

The fathers of this new generation of boys can tell them how Barney Oldfield conditioned the young mind of his day to the coming of the motor age. With the cap on backward and the big cigar, he touched the public fancy. Because he was the premier racer of the day, he held it. No soap box racer of the early 1900s would have dreamed of impersonating anyone but Barney.

A like service has been done youth in this day by Col. Roscoe Turner, who formally retires from air racing, having just won the Thompson Trophy, at Cleveland, for the third time. The Colonel is easily the most picturesque figure the flying art has given us. His gaudy and often inexplicable uniforms have caught the eye, as he intended that they should. His lion cub mascot was another touch of the showman. He may sometimes have dismayed the judicious among his professional comrades, but he knew what he was about. The air-mindedness of unnumbered youngsters can be traced directly to his deliberate play on their attention.

He had, like Oldfield, the merit of being a superlative performer, in which a child of the Barnum is easily condoned. Future air meetings will miss his color as a participant. Flying, as he says, is a young man's game. He leaves it to the thousands he converted to it.

It begins to look as if the Duce's war had been called off on account of the war.

that this will operate to the advantage of the Allies and against Germany. He does not think that is the way to get in the war. On the contrary, he thinks it the way to keep out, and in that view he is supported by many prominent Republicans and Democrats who abhor his domestic policies.

think his economic theories absurd.

THE other point of view is that the openness with which the Roosevelt Administration has taken the English-French side brings us to the very edge of war where any emotional wave, caused either by propaganda or events, might sweep us in. The assertion is made that it is not possible to keep neutral if as a government we are openly sympathetic with one side; that lifting the embargo definitely puts us in that position, and as Senator Vandenberg says, "We cannot become an arsenal for one side without becoming a target for the other." In brief, the contention is that inevitably the lifting of the embargo will put us in the war.

THE general belief is that most of the American people share Mr. Roosevelt's view in this embargo controversy; that eager as they are to stay out of war, still they want to ship munitions, arms and supplies to the Allies, and that Congress will reflect that desire by adopting the Roosevelt-Hull proposal. But that is no reason for imputing insincerity to the men who urge the other view. And it is no sign of "lack of national unity" if they urge it very strongly, because they make it clear that they are just as desirous of seeing Hitler defeated as is Mr. Roosevelt. The difference is that one side believes we could suit peacefully "attend to our own business" even if Hitler should win the war, while the other thinks a Hitler victory would distinctly menace America.

IT is unjust to question the patriotism of the Senators who oppose the President in this matter, but it is equally without justification to charge that Mr. Roosevelt wants to "drag us into war" or is using the war situation for political purposes. However, the President could promote the co-operative spirit in Congress and achieve the "abandonment of politics" for which he appealed, if he would do two obvious and clearly indicated things—first, stop some of his close friends in the Administration from trying to capitalize the war for his political benefit; second, make a statement that would end all suspicion in any quarter that he hopes the war will lead to a third-term nomination. Both of these suggestions have been made to him, but they do not seem to register.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XXXIII

In March, Mike splurged on clothes. That was because of the Kenyon wedding. She had to go to several affairs given for Bob and Ruth. At the wedding, Mike wore a smart black tailored suit. . . . Her hat showed a large part of his gorgeous hair, and the dull black made her naturally lovely skin dazzling.

"Who's the redhead? Who's the redhead?" the men asked.

"My secretary," Kenyon answered.
"First thing I'd do, Ruth, is to make Bob fire her," advised Don Raye, best man, who had taken possession of Mike and ignored the maid of honor to whom he should have been charming.

Ruth was gorgeous in her white wedding gown and so happy that it hurt Mike to look at her eyes. Seeing Ruth that day, she knew Bob would never be sorry. They were going to Bermuda for just a short trip.

"When summer comes and business drops off, we're going to England," Ruth told Mike. "But first I'm going to insist that Bob gives you a vacation."

"I wouldn't know what to do with it," Mike countered.

"I'll show you," said Don Raye, "if you will let me."

After they'd seen Ruth and Bob off, the younger members of the wedding party were ready for "more fun." Mike tried to make excuses. But Don refused to listen. They made the rounds. Don was amusing and Mike was thoroughly enjoying herself.

Arriving at 11 Rommaco with the party, Mike went on into the dressing room to freshen up. She heard somebody call her name.

"I thought you were dead or married or something!" Carol Lee swept down upon Mike as she sat down before a dressing table mirror. "You look grand!" she rattled on. "Can't you join us? Who're you with?" Mike explained about her boss's wedding.

"Dusty's away. He'll be in tomorrow with the team. I'm not going on the road trips any more. It got too boring, you know."

Of course, Mike asked after Dusty. "Better than ever. His arm's swell."

"I'm so glad, Carol."

"They all say nobody knows where Handsome is. I had a letter from Iris, she's in Honolulu." Carol's tone was lower now, more confidential. "She's opening here in a show next August. She has a pretty good part. You know Handsome left her without a cent."

Mike did not point out to Carol that it takes money to get from New York to Honolulu. That was about all the news Carol had time to impart. When Mike went to join the others at a table for two. She was with Frank Ralston. Mike could never forget his face.

Mike sat squeezed close to Don, listening to all the idle talk around the table. She was suddenly tired. Her thoughts turned toward the letter she had had from Handsome. "You should see me, Skipper. I've got a baseball team. I'm a manager now. It's the kids from the country school across the road. I never felt better in my life and, right now, I'm experimenting with that old curve. I think I've got the stuff on it again. Mr. Christian says the hand ball I play is good for me, and now and then, I feed the horses, or run the sheep." . . .

How queer the letter seemed here in this noise and heat and din. Was there really such a place of peace and fresh air and quiet?

"What are you thinking about, beautiful?" Don bent down the better to see her face.

"Pine woods, she said with a smile.

"You're a girl after my own heart. Let's shake the mob and go for a ride. I'm sick of this too." They left the crowd amid a lot of jibes, but Don only laughed. Outside the spring night was dark and soft.

"We'll go up to Central Park and get a carriage. No automobile is as good on a night like this," Don Raye had fallen hard. He made Mike's life very pleasant that spring. . . .

It was Don who took her to the stadium one Sunday for the first game she had seen in two seasons. Dusty was pitching and Mike was eager to watch him. There had been disquieting reports about his arm. Things were not as rosy as Carol had painted them. Mike was a little shocked at Dusty's appearance. He looked older and seemed tired. The Yanks finally won, but not because of any expert pitching. The team was hitting that day.

Don talked about it as they drove back from the stadium. Mike just listened. That evening Wish Malone walked into the restaurant where Don and Mike were dining. When he finally caught Mike's eye, he came over to the table. She introduced Mr. Raye and they talked casually for a few minutes.

"Have dinner with me some time soon," Wish said as he left.

Don left her at her apartment house door. It was very late, must have been after one o'clock when Mike unlocked the door of her apartment. She heard footsteps coming down the hall. A tall figure stood there in the half light.

"Mike, I've got to talk to you."

It was Dusty Lee. She hid her surprise, turned on the lights, invited him in. He slumped into a chair, mumbling. Mike observed: "You look tired."

"I am and . . . well, I suppose you wonder why I'm here."

"I certainly do. You should be home and asleep."

"I pitched today. I'm awfully tired. But I had to wait for you." Dusty rested his head on the chair back, closed his eyes. "Did you meet Carol while I was away?"

"Yes, I did, Dusty. I hadn't seen her in a long time."

"That's what she told me. . . . Gosh, I don't understand what you see in that guy, Frank Ralston!" Mike had been watching Lee's face. So that was it!

"Women are queer," Dusty hesitated and then resumed slowly: "Well, I've got something to say to you." He leaned forward. "You're still in love with Handsome aren't you?" Mike was silent. "You don't have to answer." After a pause, he asked: "Mike, can I trust you?"

"Yes."

"My arm's bad. You know what happened today. I've known it for a month. Ace won't believe it. But it's true. What I came down here to tell you is, if you know where Handsome is, if he's in any kind of shape, get him started this way."

Mike watched his gray face. Suddenly Dusty rested his arms on the table and dropped his head on them. His shoulders shook.

"Mike, I'm sorry to be such a baby, but I'm ticked."

"You can't be," Mike protested. "Why are you so?"

"I know it. Not this week, maybe, or next. But this season. I can't face it," he groaned. "My arm's going fast, it's almost gone. I—I—I'm old!"

Dusty was only 38! Old! Yes, old for big league baseball. Mike shivered. Dusty finally stood up. "I spoke my piece, Skipper. You do what you can. Mum's the word to anybody." He picked up his hat. "But if I don't know where Hand-

Several Drunken Drivers Before Court

Doylestown, sub-station of the Penna. Motor Police, following an automobile collision in Chalfont.

Pleading guilty to the theft of a radio from a friend of his, Howard E. Clark, 26, of Buckingham, who is employed by a Pineville farmer, was given a suspended sentence by Judge on condition that he pay the costs of prosecution in installments of $8.

Clark, who has never been in any trouble before and bore an excellent reputation, was arrested by Private Fred Kohler, of the criminal investigating department of the Doylestown sub-station of the Penna. Motor Police. The stolen radio has been returned to its owner.

With President Judge Hiram H. Keller on the bench, a hearing was held in a session of court here yesterday, when a petition was presented to permit the sale of liquor at the Italian American Social Club in Morrisville.

The present charter, which prohibits the sale of liquor, is expected to be amended so that it may be granted a license.

Assemblyman Thomas B. Stockham testified the club bears a good reputation.

Postmaster George W. Burgner, of Morrisville, valued the club property at $3,000.

Pasquale Tanzillo, the president, said the club, which was organized in 1932, has 32 members. Its aims are to promote American citizenship among Italians. He denied that it has any contact with any foreign countries, including the Italian government.

Classes in citizenship are held at the club with a WPA instructor in charge.

Neil Gervasa, the secretary, said every effort is made to inculcate American citizenship and ideals into the members.

David Talone, who testified Americanism is fostered and the Constitution taught, said no Fascist salute is ever given nor any allegiance to any foreign government pledged by the members. No liquor, beer or wine are now sold on the property.

President Judge Keller, following the hearing, ruled that the charter may be amended to provide for the sale of liquor, and also directed that the by-laws be amended so that they require that Americanism be fostered and members be compelled to uphold American ideals and government.

The case of Joseph W. Bowker, of Bristol, charge non-support, who was given a hearing before President Judge Keller, was continued. No order was made by the Court because a previous order now exists.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Heralded as a sensational exposure of the demoralization that takes place in a modern penitentiary, "Behind Prison Gates," Columbia's new action melodrama opens at the Bristol Theatre today. Featuring Brian Donlevy and Jacqueline Wells in the leading roles, the film tells an absorbing tale of the grim passions that beset the unfortunates who are shut off from the world by bars of steel.

"Behind Prison Gates" begins with Brian Donlevy, a member of the state attorney general's bureau of investigation, assuming the identity of a dead criminal and being sentenced to the penitentiary. He goes willingly, hoping to get evidence on a notorious gang of bank robbers.

GRAND THEATRE

The teaming of James Cagney and George Raft in "Each Dawn I Die," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre, brings together the screen's two topmost portrayals of authentic modern hard guys, and the result is a prison picture which achieves a brilliant reality—far and away the strongest drama of this type ever to reach the screen.

No only has each contributed a character portrayal that compares more than favorably with anything along the same line that he has ever done before, but jointly they present a rarely achieved welding of great talents. Both are tough, both are hard, and yet both are distinctive. And that is just as it should be, for the story of the picture demands that they be entirely different types of persons.

PHILA. IRISH STARS TO PLAY LANDRETH IX

Sunday afternoon at three o'clock the Philadelphia Irish Stars will be the attraction at Landreth Ball Park.

These teams have met twice before and after interesting games each had a victory, so Sunday's game will be the "rubber," and it should be as exciting a game as those played before.

The Irish Stars are having their very best season, and all the boys will be on hand Sunday. This, of course, includes big Sweeney at first base, who broke up the first game with a double and almost beat the "Farmers" in the second. Bill Bohler will probably be on the mound. He held Landreth to six hits in the first game, and he will be caught by Murphy.

For the "Farmers," Black will be on the rubber, with Broderick behind the bat.

This may be the final game of the season; so, if the baseball fans want to get a last look at the boys they had better be on hand at three o'clock on Sunday.

BASEBALL GAMES

The second of a three-game series between Edgely and Tullytown nines, in the Bristol Suburban League, will be played tomorrow afternoon on the Edgely field at three o'clock. The third game, if necessary, will take place at the same place on Sunday at 2:30.

Announce Parade Route For Legion Demonstration

Parking space for cars of the 20,000 persons expected in Bristol on Armistice Day was said to be ample by Corporal Evans of the Pennsylvania Motor Police. Lots include a section of the high school field, Leedom's field and numerous streets in Bristol.

Bristol residents are urged to keep their cars off the streets as far as possible on that day. Corporal Evans also stated that traffic lights may be shut off and patrolmen placed at these intersections to facilitate the handling of through traffic. Pond street will probably be kept open all the way through for this traffic.

The finance committee, headed by Dr. J. Fred Wagner, reported that this committee was making progress. Ward committees will be appointed for Bristol to carry on the solicitations of funds necessary for prizes and general expenses. The committee has set a goal of $2,000. The committee also reported that it is working on the publication of a Memorial Program Booklet.

The entertainment committee, headed by Charles Rathke, stated this committee is working out a complete and suitable program of entertainment for the visiting groups.

Offers were extended again last evening by local clubs, organizations, societies, and fire companies to take care of different units as they arrive in Bristol. Thus, as each unit arrives it will have a "headquarters" in Bristol where costumes may be changed, etc.

A. H. Queen, decorations and judges' stand committee, reported that his committee hoped to complete a plan whereby every business establishment would be decorated and also the entire line of march. He urged every resident of Bristol to display an American flag on November 11th.

Offers to aid the Americanism demonstration, which, besides the monstrous parade in the afternoon, also included a proposed football game in the morning, were made by representatives of the Sea Scouts and Cadets. These generous offers were welcomed and accepted by the General Committee.

Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., chairman of the judges and prizes committee, indicated that a list of very substantial cash prizes will be awarded winners in different divisions. Seven cash prizes will be awarded in the Junior Bugle Corps division, two in the Senior Corps, a cash prize for non-Legionnaire Corps and two cash prizes for Senior bands. Winners in the fire company division will receive as prizes silver loving cups valued at $100.

To familiarize members who were absent at the last meeting, with committees, Arthur Zug, secretary of the general committee, read the committee names. Committee chairman announced meeting dates for their individual committees.

Chairman Spencer announced the next general committee meeting for Thursday, Sept. 28, in the post home. Complete and detailed report from every committee will be made at this time.

Germany Launches Biggest Diplomatic Offensive of War

government was forced to sign under humiliating conditions after Leon Trotsky left the Brest-Litovsk conference in disgust and indignation. Germany was compelled to eradicate the pact when she was brought to her knees at Versailles the next year.

Now Germany, seeking to enlist the aid of the Soviets, offers the same terms—with the major exception, that the creation of a buffer state under German and Russian suzerainty is proposed.

Germany, according to these suggestions, would take approximately the same areas as Prussia after Vienna in 1839 and which were integral parts of Germany in 1914 including the Polish Corridor and the Silesian industrial region of Southwestern Poland, taking in the great cities of Lodz, Posen and Cracow—historic capital of the Polish kings.

Russia, which with Italy is the great unknown quantity in the European war, has proved somewhat receptive to the German idea.

Poland was assailed in the official Soviet organ Pravda for alleged maltreatment of her minorities.

Moreover, Berlin pointed to the important conversations which have been going on in the German capital with General Maxim Purzakov.

"Positive questions" have been discussed by the Russian emissary and his aides with high German military officers, Berlin said.

Russia, perhaps still wondering which way to jump, has massed troops on the Polish frontier—either, as the Germans say, to march in soon, or to make sure that Germany does not succeed in her attempts to create a Polish Ukrainian republic which might threaten the Russian Ukraine.

The Soviets are not forgetful of "Mein Kampf," which still calls for the "drive towards the east," including the Russian Ukraine.

London reports from Berlin via Copenhagen said circles close to the German government confidently expect the Russians to invade Poland as soon as the Polish army's resistance finally is shattered.

The London News-Chronicle said that any Russo-German understanding was a "matter of speculation," but that in any case such an arrangement involved abandonment of the principles of Hitler's "Mein Kampf," and tends to "confirm the belief in Berlin" that Rumania is the next German objective.

Reveal Four-Day Fight

Paris, Sept. 15—A four-day battle on the front just south of Luxembourg was revealed for the first time today in French war bulletins, which told of new French gains on German soil.

Announcing that German artillery bombardment of the Maginot line and Saar region continues, French communiqué No. 23 said: "Operations in the last few days have allowed us to make sure of the growth in the region northeast of Sierck.

"This ground has been disputed since the German offensive was announced on the evening of September 10. Moreover, we have progressed beyond this growth."

"During the night, there was local improvement in our front lines in spite of strong enemy reaction, particularly by artillery."

(Previous French newspaper accounts indicated that German troops in a counter drive launched on Monday, gained a foothold for a short time.)

Fathers Hear Address On Subject of "Wool"

wool into various products, the buying of wool, etc., readily held the attention of the men assembled.

He traced the history of wool from ancient times to the present, telling of the growing, buying and marketing of the same. Description of the numerous grades, and the different breeds of sheep proved of interest, as well as what various grades of the wool are used for.

The men were informed that an ordinary fleece of wool may have from eight to 12 sorts. The weight of the various types of wool was considered, and it was mentioned that the quality and character vary according to the climate and soil.

That in Pennsylvania is raised the best grade of wool in the world was one statement made by the Bristolian, three million pounds being grown in this State annually. In Texas, a great wool-growing State, from 70 to 80 million pounds are grown per year.

The figure quoted for the United States is 400 million pounds, there being used in this country from 600 to 700 million pounds annually, thus necessitating the importing of 200 to 300 million pounds each year.
